

the bowser report weekly

For the week ended January 15, 2021

NASDAQ ↑ 4.2%	RUS 2000 ↑ 2.2%	S&P 500 ↑ 2%	DJIA ↑ 0.6%
-------------------------	---------------------------	----------------------------	-----------------------

Bowser Companies: 2.9%

The Nasdaq soared higher due to relative strength from technology stocks ahead of the earnings season. Large companies such as Apple (AAPL), Tesla (TSLA), and Microsoft (MSFT) will be reporting earnings in the upcoming week. Many of the top performers were high short interest stocks such as GameStop (GME), which traded on unusually high volume.

Bowser stocks (up 2.9% for the week) are still on fire as small caps continue to hit all-time highs. Forward Industries (FORD) broke above $3 for the first time in 3 years and officially doubled from our recommendation. WidePoint Corp. (WYY) also continued its run up and is nearing its 52-week high.

Bowser Notes

Forward Industries (FORD) officially doubled from our recommendation two years ago. While expenses have dropped, revenues have not increased significantly. Moving forward, we would like to see a higher growth rate and more substantial bottom line improvement. Regardless, congratulations on yet another winning investment!

This week marked the launch of our investing competition! Six investors picked stocks that doubled within the first week, showing just how fierce the competition can be! There is still plenty of time left in both competitions and we will be updating you with results via the forum thread, email and social media.
