Bowser Notes

Socket Mobile (SCKT) jumped to $35 after announcing the arrival of its DuraSled™ barcode scanner. The headline is not groundbreaking, but the mention of Apple in the press release sparked social media buzz. The stock did not hold gains and dropped back down to $12.22 per share by the end of the week.

One Stop Systems (OSS) has not lost momentum despite the weakness from small stocks this week. The company has not released any news, yet the stock continued higher and hit a new all-time high of $9.37. OSS shares have gained 198% since our recommendation two months ago, showing just how much hype small stocks have attracted in 2021.
