Major indices struggled to hold gains throughout the week due to weakness from mega cap stocks. The Russell 2000 Index managed to hold its own and disregarded the lackluster macroeconomic data. The Federal Reserve announcement and press conference next week will carry a lot of weight due to rumors of tapering and possible rate hikes before the end of the year.

Bowser stocks (down 0.1% for the week) slightly underperformed despite overall strength from small stocks. Aehr Test Systems (AEHR) continued its momentum and hit a new 52-week high on news of a large order. Safe Bulkers (SB) also continued to outperform, hitting its highest price since 2014. With the Volatility Index (VIX) increasing, expect more volatility from Bowser stocks, as well as opportunity if you have cash on the sidelines.

ARC Document Solutions (ARC) hit a new four-year high on high relative volume. The stock has performed exceptionally since reporting its recent quarterly financial results.
